DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-22 are pending and subject to restriction requirement.

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-10, drawn to a method for culturing embryoid bodies from embryonic stem cells, classified in class 435, subclass 395, for example.
- II. Claims 11-19, drawn to a method for differentiating embryoid bodies to fibroblasts, classified in class 435, subclass 377, for example.
- III. Claim(s) 20, drawn to a differentiated fibroblasts cell, classified in class 435, subclass 366, for example.
- IV. Claim(s) 21, drawn to a method of screening a compound for activity or cytotoxicity by using a differentiated fibroblast cell, classified in class 435, subclass 4+, for example.
- V. Claim(s) 22, drawn to a cultured embryoid body, classified in class 435, subclass 325+, for example.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

The processes of groups I, II and IV are distinct from one another as claimed because they recite different and distinct steps of treating different materials and using different conditions as claimed that lead to different and distinct products and /or that lead to different results and effects.

The products of groups III and V are distinct from one another as claimed because encompass cellular products having different characteristics as claimed.

Art Unit: 1651

Inventions II and III are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case differentiated fibroblasts can be made from skin tissue, for example: see col. 4, line 65 of US 4,423,145.

Inventions I and V are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case an embryoid body can be made and/or cultured in liquid culture or cell suspensions, for example: see Fig. 1-c in the reference by Keller G.M. ("In vitro differentiation of embryonic stem cells". Current Opinion in Cell Biology. 1995, 7:862-869).

Inventions III and IV are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case differentiated fibroblast cells can be used in a different process of using or as feeder cells, for example: see col. 4, line 65 of US 4,423,145.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Art Unit: 1651

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for one group is not required for the other groups, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicants are advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Applicants are reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
